Irish convicts vow more hunger strikes

IEDOAH : 22774 - 6532494

DAMMAM: 8326:13

BELFAST, May 6 (AP) - Convicted Irish nationalist guerrillas in the Maze prison vowed Wednesday that hunger strikes would continue until Britain yielded to the demands for which IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands died - which amounts to political prisoner

FIVE YEARS WARRANTY

VOL. VI NO. 160

The pledge came in a statement from the 440 Irish nationalist guerrillas in the prison, 12 miles (20 kms) from here, as a steady stream of mourners filed past Sands' coffin in his family's home in Belfast's Twinbrook dis-

Apart from sporadic stone-throwing by Roman Catholic youths, Belfast was by early afternoon at its quietest since Sands, a gunman of the outlawed Irish Republican Army and recently-elected Member of the British Parliament, died in the Maze early Tuesday on the 66th day of his hunger strike.

In a statement issued by the Republican press office, Sands fellow prisoners said Britain would never "rob of us our principles." "There are many Bobby Sands in these blocks and we will continue to die on hunger strike if needs be to safeguard those principles," the statement said.

It was not immediately clear, however, whether the Maze prisoners intended to carry out a threat of a mass bunger strike aunounced on Tuesday by Sinn Fein, political front for the outlawed IRA.

Sinn Fein said Tuesday that 70 Maze prisoners were prepared to join a hunger strike, but no final decision had yet been made.

Three other guerrillas are already on hunger strike, including Francis Hughes, once the IRA's most wanted gunman, now in the 53rd day of his fast and said by relatives to be within days of death.

Two other guerrillas, Raymond McCreesh and Pat O'Hara, joined the hunger strike March, 22. In their statement, smuggled out of the Maze, the prisoners described Sands as a "lasting inspiration to those who struggle for instice."

"No one, not even (British Prime Minister) Maggie Thatcher can justifiably dishonor Bobby Sands by robbing him of his political identity for he died as he lived, a republican political prisoner," the statement said.

ser Arafat arrived in Bahrain Wednesday and explained the Syrian-Israeli conflict to the leaders here, officials said. Arafat was received on arrival by Foreign Minister Sheikh Muhammad Bin Mubarak Al Khalifa. He briefed officials on the warlike atmosphere between the Syrian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon and Israel. He also told them about Israel's attacks on Palestinians and Lebanese targets in southern Lebanon. Earlier in the day, Arafat conferred with Kuwait ruler Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah and later with Crown Prince Sheikh Saad Abdullah on the same subjects.

In Riyadh Tuesday Arafat warned that Israeli aggression against Lebanese-Palestinian forces and the Arab Deterrent Force (ADF) is in danger of provoking a Syrian-Palestinian military confrontation with Israel. He also examined with (Syrian) President Hafez Assad various ways of dealing with the deterioration in the Lebanese situation, he said.

Meanwhile, Syria staged large-scale war maneuvers on Syrian territory Wednesday as Israeli jets crashed the sound barrier over Syria's newly installed ground-to-air missile position in Lebanon. The sabre-rattling proceded the arrival in the Middle East of U.S. and Soviet special envoys seeking to calm the crisis and raised fears of a Syrian-Israeli military showdown.

Soviet First Deputy Foreign Minister Georgy Korniyenkov arrived at Damascus International Airport at mid-afternoon and was met by his Syrian counterpart, Nasser Qaddour. "I have come here to exchange views with my colleagues at the Syrian foreign ministry on various issues of interest to our two friendly nations," he said upon arrival. Syria is linked to the Soviet Union by a friendship treaty that calls for urgent consultations in the event either country is attacked.

Lebanese and Syrian officials expressed optimism Tuesday after Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam and Lebanese leaders held a second round of talks here on the fighting in Lebanon. Although no concrete proposals to resolve the crisis have come out, some new developments occurred.

Khaddam was to return to Beirut for another meeting "Saturday at the latest," well-informed sources said. And U.S. President Ronald Reagan's special Middle East envoy, former Assistant Secretary of State for Middle East affairs Philip Habib, was expected later in the week on a peace mission. He was also to visit Syria and Israel. Khaddam said of Habib's mission: American emissaries will be welcome in Syria if they want to see and hear reality" but 'If they were to come and see things from the Israeli viewpoint only, it would not be a useful thing either for the United States or the region." Khaddam called on the United States to pressure Israel to stop dropping tons of bombs on south Lebanon," on the Lebanese and Palestinian peoples.

The Syrian state radio said President Hafez Assad had ordered the war maneuvers involving "one of our fighting mechanized formations, to attain a high degree of battle preparedness. It did not specify the size of the operation, but said all forms of land forces had taken part.

The radio said the units had scored direct hits on designated targets, had mounted a counter-offensive against enemy positions and had occupied targets deep behind 'enemy defenses.'

Low-flying Israeli jets made several sonic flights over commando-controlled towns in southern Lebanon at mid-morning and over the western fringes of the Bekaa Valley, shattering window glass in several buildings in Sidon and Tyre, Lebanon's southern Mediterranean ports, Associated Press Sidon eporter Nabih Basho said by telephone.

TEL AVIV, May 6 (Agencies) - Prime Minister Menahem Begin said in an interview published Wednesday that his bitter attack on West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt was thought out in advance and was not a slip of the tongue. Responding to criticism of his harshly-worded attack, Begin told the daily Maariv: "There are times when diplomacy is a sin and clear, frank words are called for."

Begin has accused Schmidt and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of being greedy in their quest for cheap oil and Arab markets for their weapons industries. The attack brought German-Israeli relations to their lowest point in 30 years. But Begin has nearly concealed his contempt for modern Kreisky said Wednesday there would be no fair solution to the Middle East conflict unless a fair solution to the Palestine issue is achieved. In a statement to his accompanying media delegation, Kreisky pointed out he had told PLO executive committee, chairman, Yasser Arafat this fact during their meeting Tuesday.

Kreisky hailed the role played by the Kingdom on the international scene and its sound and wise policy toward the international causes particularly world oil policy.

In his meeting with Austrian businessmen in Saudi Arabia Tuesday Dr. Kreisky urged them to do their best and work harder with the Saudi husinessmen and financial institutions in order to go ahead with the desirable cooperation sought by the two friendly gov-

Kreisky said he was carrying no fresh plans or initiative for a Mideast settlement. But his talks with Saudi officials will touch on the problem and the Palestinian case.

Kreisky said he has communicated to the European community his thinking about the Middle East crisis and that "Europe now is aware of the reality and importance of the Middle East region." He said Austria was interested in a broad cooperation with the six countries of the Gulf, mainly in the domains of industry. He said his talks in Riyadh also will look into the feasibility of concluding an

A spokesman for Schmidt's In Moscow Waldheim talks show no progress

MOSCOW, May 6 (AFP) - Soviet leaders have not budged an inch from their positions on current international issues in talks this week with visiting United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim. This was evident Wednesday from a press conference Waldheim held before flying for Kiev, in which his replies were mainly noncommittal though he did confirm he was working toward a summit between President Leonid Brezhnev and U.S. President Ronald Reagan. Waldheim pointed out that he had stopped in Washington before flying here, and had thus briefed the Soviet on thinking in the White House. The general impression here, apparently shared by the Soviet leadership, is that Waldheim is here in a mainly "personal" capacity. to sound out the Kremlin on the chances of his re-election to the secretariat when the U.N. General Assembly sits next September. Waldheim, who arrived here Monday amid enthusiastic praise in the Soviet media, met Brezhnev briefly but his seven hours talks were chiefly with Foreign Minister Andrei

Gromyko. The talks, which the secretary-general described as "useful and constructive," covered East-West relations, the Middle East, tension in Europe, southern Africa, paritcularly Namibia, and the Afgban and Cambodian problems. However, Waldheim's replies to puestions on specific issues showed that in fact no progress had been made. On Lebanon, he simply said the situation was "extremely serious" and was discussed at length. The only clearer indictation was that the Soviets had revived their call for an international conference on the Middle East in general. He appeared flustered and avoided replying when an American newsman interrupted him to ask if he had brought up the subject of Syria deploying Soviet Surfaceto-Air Missiles (SAM) in Lebanon.

Turning to Afghanistan, Waldheim said he had briefed Moscow on the result of a mission by his personal envoy Xavier Perez de Cuellar to Pakistan and Afghanistan. He was non-committal on disarmament talks, simply stressing the "importance" of the SALT-2-Strategic Arms Limitation - talks.

Of his meeting with Brezhnev, Waldheim said he had received a suggestion for a summit of U.N. Security Council nations, and would contact the delegations concerned on his return to New York.

Waldheim said the Soviet leaders still seek a summit meeting with the U.S. but that they told him Soviet troops would remain in Afghanistan until "foreign intervnetion" in that nation ceased.

Yemen aide denies swing to Soviets

By a Staff Writer

JEDDAH, May 6 - The forthcoming visit of the president of the Yemen Arab Republic, Ali Abdullah Saleh, to the Soviet Union will seek to strengthen the bilateral relations and will in no way mean that Yemen will fall under the "Eastern umbrella."

Speaking to Al Jezirah newspaper Wednesday Yemen Foreign Minister Ali Lutf Al Thawar said his country rejected any attempt or suggestions to rally to either the eastern or the western umbrellas. He said the visit will bolster economic and technical cooperation and nothing more, since his country firmly believed in keeping away from superpower rivatries and entanglements.

Al Thawar who visited the Kingdom earlier this year to attend the meeting of the Saudi Arabian-Yemeni coordination council said relations with Saudi Arabia were excellent and that the council was the ideal medium for further cooperation.

The council, which meets periodically either in the Kingdom or in Yemen, reviews economic aid to Yemen in cash and in kind and takes stock of the projects already carried out or under construction in Yemen. Saudi Arabia also provides eash budgetary aid to that country.

This year's total amounted to nearly SR1 billion in cash and project financing. He emphasized the importance of the council and the determination of both sides to enhance its work and objectives in the interest of "The council has been instrumental in deepening the bonds of friendship between us in all aspects — cultural, political, economic and I hope it will go on doing so," he said.

Al Thawar said the plane to bring about a union of the two Yemen republics were continuing "according to its schedule," and committees set up to speed up the union are doing their work splendidly. He revealed that a number of joint ventures and companies have been in operation with a view to bringing about the economic integration which both countries are seeking. "The unity of the regions is the strongest ambition of the people on both sides and the program has gone a long way towards fulfillment," he said.

HOUSTON, May 6 - Negotiations are continuing for investment of Saudi Arabian funds in Australia via Australian banks.

This follows an Australian banking mission to Saudi Arabia in March under the auspices of the Australian Banking Association. Saudi Arabian officials put forward a plan for a joint investment trust made up of a consortium of banks from both countries. A similar proposal was put by bankers in Bahrain.

According to Australian officials, the negotiations are still in the "early stages". In other developments, Saudi Arabia's policy on oil prices appears to have pulled the rug from under massive development plans for synthetic fuels.

The largest of these is a $11.5 billion projects for shale oil, while another is based on the world's second largest deposit of brown coal in southeastern Victoria.

Experts in Australia are now predicting that Australia will not be able to achieve a desired high level of oil self-sufficiency in the 1990s. The Esso petroleum group has recommended that a pilot plant proposed for Australia's Rundle shale oil field, one of the world's largest, be scrapped because of curent Mideast oil over-supply and because of big cost increases in the project itself. The Australian government had promoted Rundle as "the shiring light" in Australian oil self-sufficiency into the next decade. Esso spent $34.5 million to determine the feasibility of the Rundle Develoment, and estimated costs of the pilot plant to test the project to be placed a contract worth about $10 million with the French engineering firm Serete for supervision of electrification work in the northern region.

It will oversee work on power plants, telecommunication systems and overhead lines totaling some 1,200 miles. Serete recently carried out a similar contract in Iran.

In emerging societies the woman's role remains limited since she is considered to have a restricted ability to bear responsibilities. I fail to understand how this impression has been created — depriving the society of a large portion of human resources.

A question sometimes arises whether the emerging societies are unable to assess the woman's efforts and to exploit her latent energies, or is it backwardness that makes those societies look toward these matters from a different angle? Under the umbrella of higher values and morals I think the woman can offer an active and fruitful participation. Her behavior and attitude will be guided by morals which will tend to lead her to deal more confidently with all those she comes in contact with. Within the framework of sublime values she can easily avoid lapses and errors.

I feel we need to prepare a generation that develops confidence in woman as much as self-confidence. It is my belief that there can be nothing more significant than a proper upbringing on how to deal with others without allowing oneself to become the victim of any pitfall. And such an upbringing is easily possible in the Islamic society which has solid norms and principles and gives protection against deviationist tendencies.

If we take this into consideration, we will be able to exploit her immense potentialities in many channels and give her a still better status in the society on the basis of those norms and principles. Otherwise, we shall continue to remain incapable of utilizing the enormous resources that a woman possesses. Not only this, we shall continue to feel obliged to fill the gap with those whom we cannot trust or be satisfied with the way they have been brought up. Our dependence on others cannot find any logic and justification especially as we look toward a distant future with a deep and objective view of such matters.

Moroccan envoys to tour world capitals

RABAT, May 6 (R) - King Hassan of Morocco has sent envoys to tour some 90 countries to charge Libya with trying to isolate Morocco in North Africa,

About 10 envoys left Tuesday and some are leaving in a few days with messages from King Hassan saying that Libya was dangerously aggravating tensions in the region. Foreign Minister Muhammad Boucetta said.

Boucetta left Tuesday for Canada, Mexico and the United States, while other ministers. royal advisers and high officials were entrusted with similar missions to Asia, Western and Eastern Europe. Africa and the Arab

'The diplomatic campaign follows calls of - Libyan leader Muammar Oaddafi for an alliance between Libya, Algeria, Mauritania and the Polisario fighter movement in the Westfor more than five years.

The Libyan leader toured Morocco's neighbors, Algeria and Mauritania last month. His visit coincided with press reports in Algiers that tension was growing on the Algerian-Moroccan border. And that Moroccan and Algerian troops clashed on Algerian territory two weeks ago.

U.S. said expelling Libyan diplomats

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP) - The Reagan administration is considering expelling Libya's diplomats in Washington, according to a published report.

The Washington Post, in Wednesday's editions, said no decision has yet been made, but it quoted one unnamed official as saying action may come in the near future. The paper quoted unnamed sources as saying the move would show administration fears about Libyan support for international terrorism, concern over Libyan military moves in northern Africa, and fear that Libyan diplomats here might try to eliminate Libyans in the United States who are foes of Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi.

Flood-hit Somalia seeks relief aid

MOGADISHU, May 6 (AFP) - Somalia has launched an urgent appeal for international aid for the victims of floods that have ravaged large parts of the country, killing an undetermined number of persons and making thousands homeless.

A foreign ministry statement, which expressed fears over the spread of malaria and widespread starvation, called for helicopters, rubber boats, tents, blankets, food, fuel, drugs and medical care.

*Unless such assistance is forthcoming within the next few days, the lives of hundreds of thousands of people will be in jeopardy," the statement warned. The floods, which followed two years of severe drought, started when the country's two major rivers, the Juba and the Shabelli, burst their banks. This and torrential rains have caused havocin

Pakistan protests to Afghanistan

ISLAMABAD, May 6 (Agencies) - Pakistan has accused Afghanistan of harassment of Pakistahi diplomatic staff in Kabul, a foreign ministry spokesman said.

He said a protest was made to the head of the Afghan mission in Islamabad and to the Afghan authorities by the Pakistani mission in Kabul. Pakistan does not recognize the Soviet-backed Afghan government of President Babrak Karmal but the two countries maintain embassies in each other's capitals without ambassadors.

In Paris, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Tuesday night that the Soviet leadership had had "great hesitations" about the intervention in Afghanistan.

In Kabul, according to the sources, long periods of gunfire, including shelling, were heard almost daily during the week following the anniversary of the revolution of April 27, 1978. That revolt brought former President Nur Muhammad Taraki, Afghanistan's first pro-Communist leader, into power. About 200 fighters on the night of April 29 attacked houses of known ruling party members in the Kote Sangi area of the capital, killing at least two party workers and six of their relatives, the sources added.

Japanese ship sinking

U.S. explains delay in reporting mishap

WASHINGTON, May 6 (Agencies) — The Reagan administration has told Japan that the U.S. Navy delayed reporting a nuclear submarine's collision with a Japanesse freighter because it was unaware the ship had sunk. A preliminary report, given to Japanesse leaders visiting New York on the eve of talks in Washington with President Ronald Reagan, blamed U.S. naval authorities in Tokyo for waiting more than a day to inform the Japanese government.

While clearing officers and crew of the nuclear submarine George Washington of any wrongdoing after the collision on April 9 in the East China Sea with the freighter Nisho Maru, it said the submarine's skipper Comdr. Robert Woehl, has been replaced to allow him to take part in the continuing official inquest. A spokesman for Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, who opens talks with Reagan Thursday, had no immediate comment on the report.

The collision between the nuclearpowered, missile-firing submarine and the 2,350-ton Japanese freighter became a major issue in Japan and Suzuki has demanded a report. The U.S. Navy already has accepted liability for the collision, which left the captain and a crewman of the freighter missing and presumed dead. Thirteen other crewmen were picked up by a Japanese destroyer many hours after the collision, which occurred about 110 miles of the southern tip of Japan in what the navy said was foul weather.

The preliminary report, made public by the Pentagon, disclosed that sonar equipment aboard the submerged George Washington detected the Japanese freighter before the collision.

The sonar operator notified the watch officer on the bridge of the submarine but, for some reason, that officer did not acknowledge the report. The navy report avoids any judgments of possible blame.

The George Washington, which was slightly damaged in the collision, sailed from Guam under a new skipper early Tuesday, navy officials said. The preliminary investigative report essentially repeated what the navy said shortly after the collision was made public—that Woehl, did not note any signs that the ship was in distress when he observed the Nisho Mara through his periscope while on the surface and while submerging. The George Washington surfaced right after the collision, the report said, but the captain brought it back down to periscope depth immediately after determining that there was no significant damage to the sub.

"In the three-to-five minutes before Nisho Mau went of sight in the deteriorating visibility at a distance of about 1,250 yards, he did not note any signs that the ship was in distress," the report said. "He even observed a man standing stationary on the starboard wing of the bridge, looking toward the submarine. He saw no signs of panic or disruption."

Based on his brief observations and his evaluation of the "physical jolt experienced aboard George Washington," Woehl concluded the Japanese freighter "Had not been seriously damaged." The report said that the captain withdrew the submarine to a point about eight miles from the scene of the crash and transmitted his first report "to a higher authority" about an hour and 27 minutes after the collision.

GENEVA RECEPTION: Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is received by various diplomatic corps on her arrival in Geneva Wednesday. Mrs. Gandhi later addressed the 156-nation World Health Assembly.

Indira calls for health care

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 6 (AP) — Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in an address Wednesday to the 156-nation World Health Assembly, called for a "health revolution in developing countries" and urged specific international programs to confront leprosy, childhood blindness and excessive population growth.

lation growth.

Mrs. Gandhi, in addition, pointedly denied her government ever "practiced forcible sterilization as a matter of policy" and declared that inaccurate reporting and "baseless propaganda" about birth control measures caused incalculable harm to India's family planning programs.

The 63-year-old prime minister said her government was "disturbed" by what she termed "an alarming increase" in India's population measured by a recent census, the results of which some experts have interpreted as evidence of failure of the country's family planning programs.

However, Mrs. Gandhi said, "it is small satisfaction to know that some of this (increase) is due to people living longer and not to a higher birthrate. In fact, our family planning programs are estimated to have prevented 29 million births in the last decade." The census placed India's population at 683.8 million.

Mrs. Gandhi told delegates to the World Health Organization's annual assembly that a health revolution in developing countries is vital "not only to wipe out diseases and make available specialized treatment" but to provide as well basic health care.

Atomic test

Indians fear evacuation

NEW DELHI, May 6 (AP) — Villagers in nine hamlets in India's northwestern state of Rajasthan fear evacuation because they believe that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government will soon explode a second nuclear device in their area, the "Indian Express" newspaper reported Tuesday.

However, Rahul Bedi, the reporter who visited the Pokharan area where india exploded its first atomic device in 1974, said in his report that evidence to back the fears of the villagers was "nebulous."

Gokul Das, a deputy headman at Loharki village, three kms from the site of the 1974 blast, told Bedi that he had received official word on March 10 for a meeting with eight neighboring settlements to consider the evacuation of the settlements. But the meeting was not held and no dates were fixed for the proposed evacuation, Das was quoted as saying.

However, Das added that local authorities have built barbed wire fences hemming in about 24 square kms around the blast site. The Indian army also uses the place as a firing range for testing artillery and tanks. Village leaders from Pokharan say that authorities have banned natives from visiting the enclosed area and that shepherds who have taken their sheep to graze there have been threatened by army patrols.

A local government official told Bedi that he had "heard talk of an impending explosion" but had no official information about the reported evacuations. Pokharan in the Thar desert is located about 550 kms south—west of New Delhi.

In an unrelated development, a top official of the northern Indian state of Bibar announced here Tuesday that his government will levy special "punitive 'axes" on villages where sectarian trouble occurs.

Chief Minister Jagannath Mishra told reporters that his administration has identified nine such villages and a tax of about $1,250 would be imposed on each settlement.

Scores of people have died in five days of clashes in Biharsharif township and 20 villages in Bihar, reports from the area say. Mrs. Gandhi visited the town Monday and met with riot victims on the eve of a trip abroad. She ordered local authorities to deploy the entire government machinery to end the

Kosovo party chief resigns

BELGRADE, May 6 (R) — The resignation of the Communist Party chief in the southern Yugoslav province of Kosovo appears to be the start of a party purge following Albanian nationalist riots there last month, informed sources said Wednesday.

Mahmut Bakali, 49, resigned at a provincial party committee meeting Tuesday. Many speakers called for a purge following a report criticizing the party for inefficiency and inertia in not heading off the riots, in which at least nine persons died. Bakali said he accepted the greatest share of responsibility for the riots, which have shaken the Yugoslay federation of several historically antagonistic nationalities.

The sources said the calls for a purge were likely to be heeded as the federal government was clearly worried by a resurgence of extremist nationalism. Nationalism has always been a cause for anxiety in Yugoslavia, even during the long rule of President Tito, the symbol of national unity until his death a year ago.

Antagonism to the Serbian Kosovo, an overwhelmingly Albanian-populated region that is now an autonomous province within the republic of Serbia, has long been a problem.

In brain-dead woman Plastic heart pumps blood

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (AP) — A plastic heart was implanted into the chest of a brain-dead woman and for two hours circulated blood through her body and kept kidneys, liver and lungs functioning, Temple University doctors have reported.

The unidentified patient used for the experiment had been declared neurologically dead an hour before the operation and the device did not bring her back to life. Nevertheless, the surgery, performed Sunday, was hailed as "a helpful step" in medical research that could lead to eventual use of artificial hearts in cardiac patients, possibly within a year.

"It lends itself to real-life situations," said Dr. Jacob Kolff, 42, chief of Temple's department of cardiovascular and thoracic surgery. He headed the surgical team. The first implantation of an artificial heart was in 1969 at the Texas Heart Institute in Houston. It was placed into a dying man and kept there for a few hours until replaced by a donor's heart. The patient died 32 hours later of pneumonia.

The plastic heart used at Temple consisted of two devices with four valves attached to four plastic tubes through which air was pumped and blood circulated. It was placed into the chest after the woman's own heart was removed. The powers supply, a machine, was outside the body.

"We were surprised at the ease these artificial hearts could be implanted," said Kolff, whose father, Dr. Billem Kolff, has worked on an artificial heart since the mid-1950s at the University of Utah and helped develop the pneumatic pump device.

For the first five minutes, the woman was hooked onto a lung-heart machine. The plastic heart then "took over the function of the real heart," Kolff told reporters. He said a plastic heart will be given a live patient when the power supply "can be reduced in size and weight so it can be carried in a ladies' purse."

Another important finding of the experiment "showed that artificial hearts can help preserve lungs, livers, gall bladders and other organs of brain-dead people until they can be transplanted to patients who need them," Kolff said.

U.S. to submit new proposals

ATHENS, May 6 (AP) — Foreign Minister Constantine Mitsotakis said Tuesday that talks on the continued operation of American military bases in Greece will be speeded up in hopes that parliament has time to consider a proposed agreement before national elections scheduled for November.

The minister told journalists on his return from the spring meeting of Western alliance

Bulgarians scale Himalayan peak

KATMANDU, Nepal, May 6 (AP) — Three members of a Bulgarian Himalayan expedition have scaled the 8.511-meter high Lhotse, the first conquest of a Himalayan peak by Alpinists from Bulgaria. Ministry of Tourism said Tuesday the 21-member team's leader, Christe Ivanov Prodanov, 37 of Sofia, reached the top of the world's fourth highest peak on April 30 at 1355 hours local time. He was accompanied by two colleagues from Sofia, Metody Stefanov Savove, 33, and Ognvan Petrov Baldjiyski. 35.

The three men reached the top of Lhotse without using oxygen, the ministry said. Earlier the climbers set up their camp-4 along the west face of the mountain from where the Bulgarian party launched its final attack. But the base camp message did not mention the height and date when the men established their camp.

Taipei airdrops gifts on mainland

TAIPEI, May 6 (CNA) — The Republic of China is investing heavily in its propaganda war against the Peking regime because it has proved to be very effective, according to a reliable source. "Our 'psywar' (psychological war) efforts are paving the way for our eventual return to the mainland," said the source.

Last year the Republic of China sent one million pounds of propaganda material and relief goods to the mainland, mostly by balloons. About 80 per cent of the material to the success story of the Republic of China and the bankruptcy of Communism. Other goods included food, dothing, transistor radios and wristwatches.

The source said 3.000 Taiwan-made wristwatches were either airdropped by high-flying balloons or mailed anonymously to selected Communist cadres. Wristwatches are among the most sought-after items on the mainland, the source said.

Formerly, local Communist cadres use to warn the people not to eat the food items dropped from the balloons, alleging they were poisonous. But now the Communist cadres join the populace to pick up and treasure the goods carried to the mainland by the balloons, the source said.

The balloons are of three types — those for foreign ministers in Rome that the American side will submit new proposals following talks at the meeting between himself and U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig. Mitsoakis did not comment on what the new U.S. proposals might include.

The minister said the pace of negotiations had to be quickened because "the (Greek) constitution and the forthcoming elections place an insurmountable time limit on any possible agreement and its ratification." The Greek constitution provides for a summer recess of parliament.

The four major and several minor U.S. military installations in Greece have been operating on a provisional basis since the previous agreement ended in 1976. Efforts to negotiate a new agreement, which have been going on for several months, had reached a virtual deadlock over terms that Athens insisted that it had to be satisfied regarding overall Greek command of the bases and related U.S. aid.

Commenting on his meeting in Rome with his Turkish counterpart Ilter Turkmen, Mitsotakis said both sides had agreed on the necessity of maintaining a dialogue between Ankara and Athens.

"It serves the interests of both countries and simultaneously the interests of the alliance and even of the region," Mitsotakis said. The two countries have been at odds over Aegean seabed and airspace rights for several years, as well as the Cyprus issue.

AUSTRIA AND THE ARABS

Bruno Kreisky, Austria's chancellor who is now visiting Saudi Arabia hardly needs introducing to the Arab public. The chancellor was the first European statesman to break through the fog of bias and false propaganda with which Zionism and its allies tried to cover the historic injustice inflicted on the Palestinian people, and to seek to alleviate it. In this cause, he has had to endure a great deal of vilification and blackmail, an ordeal which did nothing but strengthen his resolve that there is no way out in the Middle East except through a solution ensuring justice to all.

Chancellor Kreisky leads a small, neutral European nation — yet one which is foremost in cultural, scientific and technological development. In this respect, Saudi Arabia and the Arab world in general, look forward to even stronger ties of cooperation with Austria, and see in the chancellor's visit an important step in this direction.

Those ties with Saudi Arabia are already considerable. Austria's exports to Saudi Arabia last year amounted to Aus. Sc 1.2 billion while it imported to the value of Aus. Sc. 5.2 billion. This picture, however, is about to be modified, as Austria intensifies its export drive. For example, Saudi Arabia is negotiating with a semi-official Austrian company the sale of a complete steel plant - and that is only one of many of deals contemplated between the two coun-

Prospects dim for China's modernization

By Jonathan Mirsky

Economic turnabouts in Peking continue to keep foreign investors here guessing, but the long-range prospects for Communist China's modernization appear dim to some of the country's keenest observers. After a sequence of staggering January cancellations of steel and petrochemical plants which left its Japanese and West German creditors in a billion-pound lurch. China has now not only reversed that decision but applied to Tokyo for a $4 billion loan to cover the cost of the revived orders.
"An incredible figure," said one authority in Tokyo, where the application has been greeted with meager enthusiasm. But the Japanese must move cautiously in an arena where neither they nor Peking know the ground.

"We have absolutely no experience of this sort of thing, such cancellations, such huge compensation," a Japanese industrialist said in Shanghai. He knows the details of the threatened contracts, especially of the vast Bao Shan complex, designed almost to double China's steel output by 1990. The scheme, if completed, is reported to be worth bet-ween $7 billion and $14 billion. If the project had been canceled, China's still uncalculated compensation costs would have shattered its economic planning.

The industrialist is aware of the allegations in Peking that Japan inveigled China into a doomed scheme. Understandably, he waves this away. "They asked us. Now they blame us. The fact is they ran out of money.'

Nor can he take seriously Peking's other explanation that unnamed "leftists" in the Central Committee drove China on to the supposedly golden road to the Four Modernizations in agriculture, industry, defense and science. Investment in heavy industry would have been the key.

"It was Deng Xiaoping," the Japanese says, an indictment also whispered by thoughtful Chinese. "He visited China and told us he wanted a copy of our Kimitsu steel works. We told him that to build them in Japan, where everything is available would take at least four years. But Deng wanted speed. We supplied the technology on schedule but they couldn't meet the erection timetable."

At first China jibbed at compensation, and agitated Japanese money-men threatened to terminate existing contracts. The Japanese says: "We calculated the demage. Now they admit it was their fault. But if they won't pay enough our government will cover the cost. That would be very shameful for Peking and no one would ever do big business with Cautious even about the latest Chinese turnaround, he added: "Cancellations and orders at the same time. It's the usual bad Chinese coordina-

Faulty linkage between skilled Chinese technicians and their technologically innocent political bosses is a common topic here. "Their experts are damn bright," says a European with decades of China-trading behind him. But then one requires day-to-day decisions and — bang — a stonewall; no experience, no knowledge, no decision.

Until recently, he claims, Chinese authorities believed high technology to be public property "They imagined a whole treasure-house would just open up. But then General Electric, Westinghouse, and the rest said "money first." Like his Japanese counterpart he holds Deng Xiaoping to blame. "He deliberately engineered what he thought would be a boom. And when he saw all those big firms in the U.S. dying to place orders he just drooled. Now he's blaming "the Cultural Revolution generation" for letting the country down. That's just a way of getting the old men at the top off the hook."

Unlike the Japanese, the European trader believes that the development of heavy industry will never pay off in China. Investors will do well, he says, to buy traditional Chinese products and to help underwrite light industrial schemes, both of which continue to be profitable. Both men regard inter-agency factionalism as a critical Chinese obstacle to development. "We can't even invite some ministries to the same banquet," says the Euro-

His examples of infighting verge on the grotesque. "The metallurgy ministry blokes tried to seize all the gold in the country. The Peoples Bank said no, and squashed it. And the Canton authorities won't hand over railway revenues to the central government. They say "We're autonomous. We generated this."

Poland badly frightened the Chinese, according to the European. China, too, lags behind in housing, electricity, drains and consumer goods. "They were scared of another Gdansk. These international deals drain away all the money. You can't expect the ordinary people to be patient for too long."

For the Japanese industrialist Maoism is "China's swansong." At a recent seminar, he says, some Chinese top-level managers asked him how to avoid further cancellations. "I told them to cancel communism. They got very silent." (ONS)

The Middle East then and now

By Michael Adams

It is just 25 years since I arrived in Cairo as Middle East correspondent for the old Manchester Guardian. (The paper dropped the Manchester when the head office was moved to London in 1959). In the sunshine of that Egyptian spring of 1956 the prospect looked an inviting one.

After three quarters of a century of thinly disguised military occupation of Egypt, Britain was withdrawing its garrison from the Suez Canal zone. Under the terms of an agreement signed two years earlier with Egypt's new ruler, Gamal Abdul Nasser, the withdrawal was going ahead smoothly and the last British troops were due to leave Egypt by midsummer. After that, both sides looked forward to the opening of a new phase in Anglo-Egyptian relations. We had no way of knowing that the Suez. crisis was just around the corner.

It is true, there were one of two clouds on the borizon. Not long before I left England, news had come that King Hussein of Jordan (who was then just 20 years old) had dismissed the British commander of the Arab Legion, the redoubtable Glubb Pasha, in response to demonstrations against Britam's attempt to draw Jordan into the Baghdad Pact. And when I broke my journey to Egypt in Cyprus, I found myself caught up in more anti-British demonstrations, provoked this time by the arrest of Archbishop Makarios and his deportation to the Seychelles.

As it turned out, these episodes provided an apt forestaste of the experiences that lay ahead of me. Within the next three years the whole of the apparently secure framework through which Britain exercised effective control of the Middle East was to crumble. But for the moment, as I settled into the genial confusion of life in Cairo, the atomosphere was outwardly friendly and there was little to disturb the assumption that Britain would continue to dictate the course of events in the Middle East. After all, it was not only in Egypt that there were

British troops to reinforce the influence of the British ambassador. All over the Middle East there were bases from which the British kept a close watch on events and where they maintained what would now be called rapid deployment forces, ready to act at once against any "subversive" elements which might threaten to disturb the established order of things anywhere between the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean. There was a squadron of aircraft of the British Royal Air Force at Habbaniye in Iraq, and a British cavalry regiment at Aqaba in Jordan. Aden was still a British colony, and provided base facilities for British sea, air and ground forces. Bahrain was the strategic center for the British-controlled defense system for the Gulf region. Through a variety of treaty arrangements, Britain enjoyed special rights and facilities in the Trucial States (now the United Arab Emirates) and in Libya.

It was this military infrastructure that buttressed Britain's position throughout the Middle East. Because of it, and whatever the local governments might say or do, it was the British representative (who might be an ambassador or a "resident" or a 'political agent") whose word was decisive in the end. This was what Abdul-Nasser meant by "imperialism," this whole far-reaching pattern of political domination and the military power which supported it. He set out to destroy it (I can still hear the way in which, in his public speeches at the time, he would roll the final "r" of the word istamar-r-r and to put the peoples of the Arab world in a position to decide their own destiny.

That was 25 years ago - and how much has changed in that quarter of a century? At first sight, a great deal. There are no RAF planes in Iraq, no British cavalrymen in Jordan. The Aden base is in other hands and all those 19th century treaties which gave Britain special rights in the Gulf have long since been forgotten. More importantly, the tremendous development of the oil industry has put into the hands of Arab governments power and influence which were undreamed of in 1956. The balance of power - or let us say of potential power has shifted out of all recognition.

And yet, despite these changes on the surface, it is sad to reflect how little has changed about the underlying situation in the Arab world which Abdul-Nasser set out to overturn. Apart from imperialism, the other principal theme of his speeches right back there in 1956 was Palestine; and the way to recover it, he told his audiences, was through Arab unity, which he emphasized as the key to Arab salvation. So much has happened since then to complicate the situation in the Middle East that when one looks back at the probelms he faced, which seemed so daunting then, they seem almost simple by comparison with those of today. But two things seem to me plain.

If the Americans succeed in what seems to be their ambition of establishing a new "presence" in the Arab world, not unlike the old British presence which I found in existence in 1956, the Arabs will be no nearer to controlling their own destiny than they were then. And if they really want to recover any part of Palestine, they will only do so by bringing their united influence to bear on the Americans.

At present, the pro-Israeli lobby in Washington has things all its own way - because it is united and ruthless and energetic. But it has no real power either to help or to hinder the United States. The Arab lobby, if only (in the American phrase) it could "get its act together," outh to have a tremendous advantage, because the Arab governments have it in their power to make or break America's Middle East policy. They have the power in their hands. The question is, do they have the nerve to use it?

A majority of newspapers Wednesday led with the arrival of Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky on a three-day official visit to Saudi Arabia, and his talks with King Khaled on bilateral relations and the Palestine issue. Meanwhile, Al Medina said in a lead story that King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd are exerting every effort to put an end to the Israeli assaults on Lebanon.

Newspapers frontpaged the arrival of PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and his meeting with the King Tuesday. Al Bilad gave front-page coverage to Korean Minister of Construction Kim Joo-nam, who, had an audience with the monarch Tuesday. In another story, Al Bilad gave prominence to Crown Prince Fahd's talks with Arafat on the Lebanese situation and the Middle East crisis. Israel's troop concentrations inside Lebanon figured prominently on the front pages of the newspapers which also highlighted Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam's statement in which he reportedly said that Israel's demand to pull out Syrian SAM ground-to-air missiles from Bekaa was quite ridicu-

The main topics of discussion in the newspaper editorials Wednesday centered on Chancellor Kreisky's current visit to the Kingdom and the deteriorating security situation in Lebanon. In an editorial on Kreisky's visit, Al Riyadh noted that Israeli Premier Begin has already castigated the French President and the West German Chancellor for their stands on the Palestine issue. It added that Kreisky would not be safe from Begin's slanders and critical remarks, but he has also been previously subjected to Zionist tirades, which could never make him renounce his principles. Austria has a clear understanding of the Middle East problem and is also totally convinced of the need for the establishment of an independent state for the people of Palestine. With this in view, the Austrian leader has been making serious attempts and is now meeting with the Saudi Arabian leadership to exchange views on the broad lines of any possible development for a peaceful solution to the problem, said the paper.

Al Nadwa said in an editorial that, "since we know the significance that Kreisky attaches to peace in this region, he is called upon to intensify his efforts in this direction". While the Austrian leader is expected to discuss ways and means to reinforce economic and technical cooperation with Saudi Arabia, the paper said, he would also realize the difficulties because of Israel's repeated assaults. It urged him to take a serious look at the whole situation and to make exhaustive efforts with other European leaders to find a solution to the problem. Through their honest endeavors, they would serve their own interests in the region besides helping security and stability prevail in the world, it added.

On the same subject, Al Jarirah observed that Kresiky's current talks in Riyadh would reveal that Israel is being used as a tool by the superpowers to implement the division of Lebanon. Israel is continuously creating the causes for tension in the region, and this is the point by which the superpowers would try to justify their intervention in the region and the consequent division of Lebanon. Praising Kreisky's friendly stance, the paper said he is known among the leaders of the European world to be deeply concerned with the Middle East crisis and equally anxious to find a peaceful solution to the

On the other hand, Al Medina expressed concern for Lebanon, and said that the government and people of Saudi Arabia have been devoting their full attention to the critical security situation in Lebanon. The paper said that the Kingdom is aware beyond doubt that the main factor of evil and dissension in the region is Israel, which is exploiting secessionist Saad Haddad and his treacherous gang for the division and colonization of Lebanon. It is common knowledge that all those who are helping the Zionist enemy bear more serious responsibilities than the enemy himself, the paper added. Referring to King Khaled's recent cable to the Reagan administration and Crown Prince Fahd's warning against further attacks by Israel, the paper said that all this concern reflects the deep sense of responsibility of the Kingdom toward that nation and itsfaith.

Okaz also gave due attention to the Crown Prince's description of the situation in Lebanon as very "grave and delicate". It said that the Kingdom is trying its best to avert a division of Lebanon and to bring unity among the parties concerned. It exhorted all Arabs to come up to the level of responsibility and to support Saudi Arabia's diplomatic moves toward finding a just and peaceful solution to the Middle East crisis.

Letter to the editor

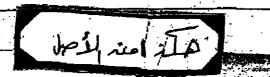

I read with interest the recent article in you sister publication: Saudi Business, and decided to write about the total lack of regard for the customer, and honesty, at many gas stations throughout Jeddah. Even if one were to stand directly in front of the pump, intently watching the liters on the pump meter, and then expertly punch the proper figures in on his calculator to find the exact total according to the grade of gas; and even if one were to round off, leaving the extra rival or rival and a half, even then, invariably, the station attendant sullenly would demand several rivals over the correct, legal

Recently one attendant blatantly lied about not the price — a figure he obviously derived through various intricate calculations — but rather the amount of gas pumped, when clearly, on the meter (before he flicked it back to zero) was an amount a good five liters lower. My particular problem is the Medina Road series of stations. But I suspect this situation would exist elsewhere. Thank you very much for your consideration.

Bedouin system can roll back desert'

GLAND, Switzerland (R) - Revival of an ancient bedouin system of nature protection could help stop the spread of deserts in the Middle East, an international conservation organization has said. The Swiss-based Intemational Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) said it would call for a revival of the bedouin Hema system of reserves at a United Nations meeting of Middle East governments opening in Damascus next weekend.

Hemas were reserves used for grazing, kept for periods of drought, or used to protect

"A modern-day version of the Hema system could help governments combat desertification and improve the standard of living of people in the region," said Dr. Hartmut Jung-ius of IUCN. IUCN has helped establish reserves in cooperation with the Jordan and Oman governments. Saudi Arabia has signed a $300,000 agreement with IUCN to advise on a wide-ranging program to protect and

A recent report by the U.N. Economic Commission for the region had questioned the wisdom of settling nomands, IUCN noted, "Animal husbandry as practiced by the bedouins may be the best adaptation to arid land," the report said. Only a fraction of the marginal land used by nomands, could be irrigated or farmed, it said. IUCN said Hema — like reserves could help protect the Middle East's threatened relatives of domestic crops, such as wild wheat and outs, pistachio, lentil, sorehum and cotton.

Revolutionary educational venture fails in U.S.

By Ronald Clarke

LOS ANGELES, (R) - It began 31 months ago as part of a revolutionary American venture in education — to forcibly mix white, black and other ethnic groups of children in the classrooms to give them equal opportunities and a chance to know each other. About 23,000 children in Los Angeles were transported to schools in outlying districts each day to create a more even racial balance in the classrooms.

Los Angeles, with its 550,000 students, was the biggest American city to integrate its school system in this way. But in the first such reversal of its kind in a U.S. city, the venture here has been halted. Students are returning to their old schools, hundreds of thousands of dollars in transport costs have been wasted and the races seem as separated as before. The people who supported integration are asking what went wrong.

"This has built the walls of segregation even higher and pulled us further apart," the only Black member of the Los Angeles School Board, Rita Walters, said. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), which this week gave up an attempt to keep 7,000 students from returning to their old schools, has promised to continue its legal battle to integrate the classrooms. But most legal experts here believe the battle is over, at least for this year.

Following the 1964 Civil Rights Act and a series of legal tussles, a fleet of buses began moving the 23,000 children across the city in September, 1978. Police cars kept watch outside schools, police helicopters hovered over bus routes and special police platoons stood by in case of trouble. The children were forced to switch schools under what was known as the Mandatory Busing Program. Another 30.000 children, mostly from minority groups, had earlier volunteered to change schools, mostly to improve their education.

The switch took place peacefully, apart from a few picketing parents. But several thousand children disappeared from the city school system in a so-called "white flight." Some parents sold their homes and moved outside the "busing" area. Others moved their children into church and private schools, which charge up to $4,000 a year to educate a child plus the cost of books and school uniforms. Some parents, in the early days formed home-teaching groups, often with the paid help of retired schoolteachers, to keep their children away from school.

An organization called Bustop was formed to lead the fight against forced "busing" and to put up candidates for the school board. Black and white minority group children often found their new schools in "white" areas had better facilities than their old schools. But they also discovered the buses waiting outside the schools prevented them from taking part in many after-school activities, the main time for mixing.

Distances also prevented children of different races from visiting each other's homes. In the playgrounds, children often tended to keep with those of their own race, partly because of friendships formed on the buses.

" In the integrated schools, white kids went to one side of the schoolyard and black kids went to the other," state Senator Alan Robbins, an opponent of forced "busing," said.

But a group of black students in a predominantly" white "school who gathered round a reporter recently said they preferred their new school, despite a 45-minute bus ride

" We had a bad drug scene in my last school. I have learned more here and I get on well the teachers and the students," a 14year-old black girl said. A group of white students said they wanted the black students to stay. The groups talked easily to each other. But, last February, the California Supreme Court let stand an appeals court ruling upholding an anti-busing measure, known as proposition one, approved by state voters in 1979. The propositions, a state constitutional amendment, required proof of intentional segregation before a mandatory " busing " program could be ordered by the courts.

Civil rights groups have failed so far to convince the courts here that the school board has been guilty of intentional segrega-

The Rockets, making their first appearance in the title series led for all of the first half and most of the second before Boston scored eight points in a row to take a 96-91 lead with 2:55 to play.

The Celtics' Robert Parish started the spurt by converting an offensive rebound. Bird hit a jumper from the left corner, M.L. Carr scored on a fast break following a steal by Bird and Cedric Maxwell capped the burst with another fastbreak basket after a rebo-

Forward was supposed to be Houston's weakness in the matchups against the Celtics, but it was the Rockets' forwards, Billy Paultz and Reid, who scored 10 points apiece as Houston jumped to a 22-8 lead in the opening 8:08.

Three-point plays by Chris Ford and Carr helped Boston close the gap to 29-24 at the end of the first quarter, and the Celtics twice pulled within two during the second period. But a slam dunk by Maloj capped an 11-3 spurt that helped Houston maintain a 57-51 lead at halftime. Reid had 16 points and Paultz 14 for the Rockets in the first half, while Malone, scoreless in the first period, had eight points and 10 rebounds. Reserve guard Gerald Henderson was Boston's leading scorer at halftime with 11 points, all of them in the second quarter, while Bird had eight points and 11 rebounds.

time at 3:24 of the third quarter when Maxwell sank two free throws for a 69-68 lead. Three baskets by reserve guard Calvin Murphy, who finished with 16 points, helped Houston take a 81-76 lead into the final period.

That's when the Celtics defense stiffened. Boston allowed the Rockets just 14 points in the final period and only four in the last 5:16. That was a repeat of the brilliant defense that helped the Celtics defeat the Philadelphia 7hers in a seven-game series for the Eastern Conference title.

The Celtics now have held opponents to less than 100 points 29 times this season, winning all of those games. That included 24 during the regular season and five during the playoffs, including their last three outings. Meanwhile, two teams of American basketball players are to take part in three exhibition games in Japan at the Tokyo Xogogi National Stadium in June.

The players — all from the National Basketball Association - include Moses Malone of Houston, Abdul Jabbar of Los Angeles, Adrian Dantley of Utah, Michael Ray Richardson of New York, Jacksikma of Seattle and Marques Johnson of Milwaukee.

VAIN ATTEMPT: Robert Reid, top scored for the Rockets with a tally of 27 points, but his fighting efforts proved in vain as Houston lost their opening best-of-seven playoff series to Boston 95-98 Tuesday.

Islanders romp into NHL final

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP) - Mike Bossy scored two power play goals in the first period Tuesday night to set a National Hockey League record for most goals in a regular season and playoff combined as the New York Islanders cruised past the New York Rangers 5-2 to sweep their semifinal Stanley Cup series four games to none.

The defending champion, Islanders also set an NHL team mark for postseason power play goals with 26, eight of them by Bossy for another record. Butch Goring's shorthanded goal at 1:29 of the second period fied the league playoff mark of seven in that cate-

Bossy, the League's goal-scoring champ with 68 this season, now has 81 goals, including the playoffs. Philadelphia's Regie Leach scored 80 - 61 in the regular season.

The Islanders took total control of the game from the outset as they completed their embarrassment of the Rangers, 13th in the regular season standings. Top point-getters during the season, the Islanders achieved a measure of revenge for the 1979 six-game semifinal upset by the Rangers.

John Tonelli victimized Rangers' goalie Steve Baker with a 15-foot backhander 1:02 into the game. The Islanders' power play, which set an NHL record with 96 such goals

Moments later, Ciccarelli and McCarthy combined on a 2-on-1 break and Ciccarelli got another easy tap-in after Flames goalie Rejean Lemelin was drawn out of position.

Ciccarelli also scored Minnesota's first goal on a power play at 3:01 of the first period. Pekka Rautakallio tied the game with Calgary's first power play goal of the series at 9:26, but Christoff put the North Stars who ahead for good 2-1 on a power play at 13:18.

South Korea, Japan to clash in final

JAKARTA, May 6 (AFP) - Japan meets South Korea in the finals of the Marah Halim Cup Football Tournament in Medan, North Sumatra, later Wednesday after defeating Holland 3-2 while South Korea downed Thailand 3-0 on Tuesday.

Japan was pressed hard by Holland during the first half when the latter took a 1-0 lead with a powerful shot by center forward Van Lecuwen.

But the Japanese fought back in the second half with more tactful attacks and in the ninth minute outside-left Nobuyo Fujiro equalized with a stinging shot direct into Holland's net.

Holland scored another goal 11 minutes later through inside-right De Boer. However, Japan countered with another goal by Masahaki Sukaida, before Fsjijo scored the winning goal 12 minutes before the match ended.

In the previous match, South Korea beat Thailand 3-0 after leading 2-0 at half time. Thailand will meet Holland for the third and fourth places.

In West Germany, the Soviet Union beat Hamburg 3-2 in a friendly match. The Russians, who are in Germany to prepare for their World Cup European Group Three qualifying match against Wales in Wrexham on May 30, scored through Blochin (2) and Andre-Magath and Hartwig replied for a Hamburg side missing Franz Beckenbauer and intemational striker Horst Hruebesch.

Meanwhile, Egypt, once the kings of African soccer, meet Morocco in a World Cup qualifying match on Friday determined to show they have gained their position as the region's top football nation.

Beaten 1-0 in the first-leg in Casablance last month, the Egyptians have pledged allout attack and coach Hanada Sharqawi is confidently predicting they will score enough goals to reach the next round in the African Group.

Morocco are regarded here as the best side in Africa and the Egyptians are forecasting that if they survive on Friday they will qualify for next year's finals in Spain. Although Egyptian coaches acknowledge local soccer does not match that in Europe, they say standards have improved in the last few seasons.

With Morocco expected to adopt defensive tatics to protect their lead. Egypt's key players will be Mahhoud Khatib, Mustapha Abdou and Ramdan Sayed.

Libya favors output cut

Yamani denies urging oil price reduction

Arabian oil minister strongly denied Wedne-sday that he ever called for crude oil price reduction.

"This the fifth time that I deny this," Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters, a few hours before the nine-nation ministerial conference of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) got underway here. He said he has been calling for a long-term oil production-pricing strategy to be observed by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Reporters questioned Yamani on his recent U.S. television statement which was construed as a deliberate attempt by Saudi Arabia to keep its production rates high with a view to pushing prices down. Yamani said his statement was misunderstood and misinterpreted.

Last year, Yamani presided over a special OPEC committee to hammer out a long-term strategy for the organization's production and pricing policies. The committee at the time recommended that oil price hikes in the future be linked to inflation rates in industrialized countries. Libya objected to this, and the recommendation has since been dormant. Saudi Arabian sources said Yamani's denial did not mean that the Kingdom would encourage oil prices hikes. On the contrary, they said, Saudi Arabia wants to eliminate the current pricing disarray within OPEC and keep future hikes within a reasonable and

Hours before the OAPEC meet was to open here, the Libyan oil minister, Abdel Salam Al-Zagar, complained to reporters that the conditions in oil markets were "favorable to consumers and detrimental to producers." "The OPEC-decreed ceiling price (of $41 a barrel) is too low, much lower than the cost of alternative energy sources," he

Al-Zagar said that Libya wanted to ask OAPEC to cut back production rates with a view to absorbing the "current two million barrel a day surplus" in oil markets. He also said Libya was in favor of employing oil as a weapon to pressure Israel's Western backers into playing even-handedly in the Middle

"But any decision on that (oil weapon) score must be taken seriously and unanimously by all Arabs," Al-Zagar insisted. OAPEC has nothing to do with oil pricing or production programming. The agenda for the Kuwait meeting includes setting up an all-Arab engineering company to minimize reliance on foreign petroleum engineering companies, appoint judges for the OAPEC Judicial Board that arbitrates between members in the event of disagreement, and examine a report on a projected OAPEC-financed drydock in Algiers.

Oil Minister Mana Said Al-Oteiba of the United Arab Emirates (UAE) proposed an OPEC oil price freeze while a glut prevails in the world market, but came out against price

($9 million), is part of 275 million marks of West German conomic aid to Bangladesh

Zia arrived in Bonn Monday for a five-day state visit. He met Tuesday with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Rainer Offergeld, minister of aid to developing countries.

During a luncheon meeting given for Zia at the Schaumburg Palace near Bonn, Schmidt pointed to some of the problems of developing countries like Bangladesh. Among the most serious problems, said Schmidt, are the oil import costs to many Third World countries and their uncurbed birth rates. "In 1979 and 1980 the annual increase in their oil expenditure alone exceeded the entire official development aid of the Western industrial nations," said Schmidt. In quoting a statement made earlier by Zia about his country Schmidt said, "If we fail with birth control we cannot survive."

Schmidt said aid for family planning programs was among the topics discussed by during talks with Zia. The two leaders also discussed the upcoming North-South summit to be held

Arab panel studies Iraq's complaint

KUWAIT, May 6 (AP) - A committee of five Arab oil ministers met here to examine an Iraqi complaint about the financial and administrative position of the Arab world's largest oil tanker company, the Arab Maritime Petroleum Transport Company.

The meeting was chaired Tuesday by Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, with oil ministers of Kuwait, Iraq, Algeria, and Libya attend-

The five-man committee was set up last year during the OAPEC conference in Algiers to deal with Iraqi charges about financial and administrative irregularities in the $1.6 billion-company. The company is an OAPEC subsidiary. It has been incurring losses since its founding seven years ago, according to Iraqi officials. But company sources said it scored profits for the first time this year.

The Iraqi complaint, contained in a memorandum to OAPEC secretariat, was believed to be demanding certain changes in the company management.

To formulate policy

U.S. seeks postponement of rich-poor talks

UNITED NATIONS, May 6 (AP) — The United States has asked that further U.N. talks on a proposed economic conference of rich and poor nations be delayed at least until late October to give the administration of U.S. President Ronald Reagan more time to formulate its policy on the subject.

The American position was spelled out Tuesday at a private, informal meeting of the General Assembly. Assembly President Ruediger Von Wechmar of West Germany called it to determine how soon he could usefully reconvene the still-unfinished 1980 Assembly session to take up that subject, the only one on its agenda not yet dealt with.

Pakistani Ambassador Niaz Naik, a former chairman of the developing countries' group here, told a reporter he was disappointed. He said he now did not expect the talks to start till the beginning of next year. Informed sources present at the meeting, who asked not to be identified, said the Assembly would meet developing countries, grown to more than 120 since its organization almost 17 years ago, reacted to the U.S. speech with "disappointment and frustration," and both Norway and Sweden said the problems involved were too serious for postponement. The sources said the European Common Market was noncommittal. Before the Assembly began its 35th session last September, developing countries had proposed the economic conference for socalled global trade-and-aid negotiations between industrialized and developing countries be scheduled to begin in January of this year and run to next September.

The U.S. speech at Tuesday's private meeting, made public by its U.N. mission, said the new administration was systematically reviewing its "economic relations with developing countries." "Our future decisions on global negotiations will be based on the results of this review," the statement said. "When fully developed, our policy will be constructive, practical and designed to achieve concrete results in economic development." "As the administration proceeds to strengthen our domestic economy," it went on, "the U.S. will doubtless be in a better position to engage in mutually beneficial economic relations with other countries.

"This approach leads us to believe that the issue of global negotiations should be deferred at least until the next regular session of the General Assembly and after other scheduled interventing discussions, including the economic summits in Ottawa (Canada) and Cancun (Mexico)...

The Ottawa summit will be July 20-21. The Assembly's next regular session will begin September 15, but the Cancun, Mexico. summit will not take place until October 23-27. That would push the global negotiations issue back to about the beginning of November.

The U.S. stand on these negotiations paralleled the one it took at the recently recessed U.N. conference on the law of sea, where the American delegation asked that talks on a sea-law treaty be interrupted till next fall to give the Reagan administration time to formulate a policy on the draft that has been negotiated over the last seven years.

Haig-Thorn talks

EEC, U.S. to step up trade consultations nation European Economic Community (EEC) and the United States have agreed here to step up their regular high-level meetings on trans-Atlantic economic issues.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig met here Tuesday briefly with EEC Commission President Gaston Thorn. An EEC spokesman said afterwards the two agreed to hold a special meeting just prior to the July 20-21 economic summit of seven industrialized nations in Ottawa.

High-level U.S.-EEC discussions take place twice a year. It is hoped that the quality of these discussions "can be improved by additional meetings such as the one in Ottawa." the spokesman said. He added preparations for a meeting between U.S. President Ronald Reagan and Thorn in Wahington "are in an advanced stage although no final date has yet been set." A scheduled Thorn-Reagan meeting had to be cancelled in recent weeks becuase of the attack on Reagan's life.

Haig arrived here in the afternoon after attending a two day meeting of NATO alliance ministers in Rome. He met with Thorn and Wilhelm Haferkamp, the EEC commissioner for industrial relations, at the EEC headoffice for about an hour. He then paid a courtesy visit on King Baudouin and met with Belgain Premier Mark Eyskens before flying back to Washington.

In brief statements to reporters after their meeting, Haig and Thorn listed the world economy, relations with the Third World and Poland among the topics they discussed. The EEC spokesman said later Thorn and Haig stressed the need to "bring world trade in balance." They said in this respect that the EEC, the U.S. and Japan "must share the

Haig stated publicly that current economic conditions "require all of us to keep a keen eye on the essentiality of free trade in interna tional commerce which has been the life blood of the Western industrialized society in the past decade."

The issue of Japanese car exports was not broached specifically at the meeting. But the EEC spokesman said this is one area where the European community would like to see more "burden sharing." Since the announcement that Japan will restrict its car sales to the United States this year, there has been concern at the EEC headoffice that this might lead to an increase in the sale of Japanese cars in Europe. Although some European countries have strict import quotas on Japanese cars, in other countries - notably Belgium and the Netherlands — more than 25 per cent of all the cars are made in Japan. "We need to resolve this problem together," said the spo-

Dollar drops; riyal rates ease

By J.H. Hammond

JEDDAH, May 6 - Wednesday's European and local markets took down the value of the dollar against most major currencies. The trigger was the fall in the "Fed funds" rate in New York Tuesday night. The "Fed" rate fell from 19 1/2 per cent to 17 1/4 per cent, but at the same time the Federal Reserve Bank announced tighter restrictions on commercial banks borrowing ability from the American central bank. The "Fed" did this by raising the discount rate from 13 to Locally, riyal deposits rates eased by the two per cent in most tenors to reach Monday's levels. Gold and silver fell to $476 levels Tuesday, but recovered both in New York and European bullion markets Wednesday to reach levels of $483 per ounce.

On the exchanges, the dollar slipped slightly after its "tremendous leap" Tuesday, according to London dealers. The falls, however, were not significant, but there were variations amongst different currencies. The mark gained nearly 200 points against the dollar to be quoted at 2.2580 by late afternoon after the second consecutive day of heavy intervention support by the German Bundesbank. The French franc similarly rose against the dollar to 3,3680 levels, but the yen remained stable throughout Wednesday, not fluctuating much from 217.30 levels. The sterling was still basically weak at 7.1180 Wednesday (same level as

New York dosing) after it had reached 2.0930 levels the day before. The Swiss currency also gained slightly against the dollar to be quoted at 2.0580.

Eurodollar deposit rates eased after the Fed fund's move, but dollar rates are still at a premium compared to all other currencies. Three-month deposit rate is quoted at 18 % - 19 per cent, but this is due to technical factors of quoting for value Friday. Thursday should give a better indication of how dollar desposits have fared. Locally, rival deposit rates eased by more than two per cent, especially in the short dates. One-year JIBOR rates came at 15 4 per cent after being offered at 17 per cent Tuesday. One-year interbank bid-offer rate reached last week's average rates of 15 1/4 - 15 1/4 per cent. Week fixed funds also fell to 15 1/2 - 16 per cent after being quoted at $16\frac{1}{2} - 17$ per cent the previous day. Spot riyal against the dollar reached 3.3610-15 from previous opening highs of 3,3620-40. Market activity was reported "thin", howe-

To protect franc France hikes discount rate

PARIS, May 6 (R) — France has raised its equivalent to a bank rate by one per cent to protect the franc as the currency came under heavy pressure because of fear that Socialist François Mitterrand might win this weekend's presidential election.

The state-run bank raised its treasury bill discount rate to 13.5 per cent, a move which foreign exchange dealers said was aimed at halting the French franc's steady decline against the West German mark over the last two weeks. The rate is effectively the Bank of France's minimum lending rate (bank rate). But the measure had little immediate effect and the franc continued to weaken against the major European currencies as well as the booming dollar. The financial developments provided an intriguing backdrop to Tuesday night's 110-minute televised debate between the 64-year-old Mitterrand and President Valery Giscard d'Estaine, who is seeking a second seven-year.

Giscard whose own economic record since 1974 has been under heavy fire from his critics, has argued that a Socialist victory Sunday could result in a loss of political and financial confidence in France abroad.

Mitterrand has said he would nationalize a number of leading firms as well as banks and insurance companies.

Bani-Sadr flays draft budget were the major cause of the decline.

TEHRAN, May 6 (AFP) - President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr Wednesday attacked the Iranian government's draft budget for 1981 on the ground that it will make Iran as dependent on Western oil consuming countries and Arah oil producers as it was under the regime of the late Shah.

Bani-Sadr, writing in the liberal daily Mizan, said that the budget, which will draw 80 per cent of its funds from oil revenue and the remainder from income tax and customs duty, "will keep Iran in a vicious circle on misery and dependence."

South West North Pass 3♠ Dble 4♡ 4 💠 Dble Opening lead

There are some funny stories in the tournament bridge world. For example, take this hand where East taking advantage of the vulnerability, opened three diamonds and South bid three spades.

West, a well-known expert, managed to restrain himself and pass, but when South bid four hearts over partner's three notrump, West could contain himself no longer and doubled - pianissimo.

Appreciating the danger of playing the hand with only four trumps, South ran to four spades, which West doubled crescendo, appassionato, and fortissimo — and pretty loud, at that. West led the ace of diamonds, which South ruffed. A low club to the ace, snatching West's king, was followed by another diamond ruff. Declarer new decided, from both the vigor of the double and West's marked shortage in the minor suits, that West had all the missing trumps. Accordingly, South put a plan into action to combat West's presumed five trumps. He cashed the A-K-Q of hearts and, when East failed to ruff, South's suspicions were confirmed. He then ruffed the jack of hearts in dummy before trumping a third round of diamonds. By now, eight tricks had been played and South had won them all. West still had his five trump winners while South had the K-J-8 of trumps and J-6 of clubs. A chub lead forced West to ruff and return a trump to South's jack, and another club lead forced West to ruff and give declarer his tenth trick in the form of the king of trumps. So South made four spades doubled!

East had very little to say about the result. In fact, he made only one criticism. He thought West should have doubled, all right - but dimimendo.

Letter bomb to Charles spotted

LONDON, May 6 (Agencies) - A central London mail sorting office was evacuated Wednesday morning when a postal worker spotted another letter bomb, the third within 24 hours addressed to royalty or legislators. Scotland Yard issued a general warning to prominent people to be on the lookout for suspicious packages amid fears of an Irish Republican Army (1RA) letter bomb campaign on the mainland following the death in Northern Ireland of hunger striker Bobby Sands Monday.

A letter bomb designed to maim rather than kill and addressed to Prince Charles was intercepted at London's Howick Place sorting office Tuesday night. In the early hours Wednesday, postal workers there found one addressed to senior opposition Labor Party legislator Roy Hattersley. The third bomb was found later Wednesday at a sorting office near the House of Commons. The post office disclosed initially only that it was destined for the Commons, but did not identify the addre-

Earlier, this year, letter bombs were sent to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and another Conservative Party legislator, Jill Knight, noted for speaking out against IRA violence. Scotland Yard said, however, the new devices, in brown padded envelopes and apparently from the same source, were crudely constructed and unlike the work of the

The bombs were all defused by members of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad. Responsibility for the bomb addressed to Mrs. Knight last month was claimed by an obscure group calling itself "ERA," believed to stand for English Republican Association. But police have not traced the group or whether it has Irish links.

Said Hattersley: "I can see no pattern in this all. Prince Charles, Maggie Thatcher, Jill Knight and myself share no common thread." Labor supports Mrs. Thatcher's refusal to yield to IRA hunger strikers' demand that jailed Irish guerrillas be treated as political prisoners.

About 5,000 youths burnt a British flag and shouted "Freedom for Ulster (Northern Ireland)" during a march in downtown Milan Wednesday to protest the death of Sands. Demonstrators, carrying red flags and posters reading "British out" and "Struggle for Ulster is a liberation war" set aftre the flag outside the British consulate which was guarded by heavy police forces.

In Lisbon, a bomb went off early Wednesday outside the Royal British Club, damaging nearby vehicles and the British-owned building, which also houses the British-Portuguese Chamber of Commerce. A spokesman for the club said later that the explosion, which caused only minor damage, was a protest against the death of Sands.

Meanwhile, Buckingham Palace said Tuesday that Prince Charles is in touch with British diplomats in West Germany. The discfile a suit to block publication there of sup-osed transcripts of his bugged phone call to his bride-to-be and Queen Elizabeth II.

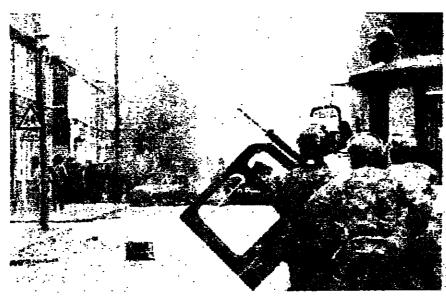

British journalist Simon Regan claims he obtained transcripts of conversations taped last month by anti-royalist Australians while Charles was on a visit there. Regan says he is trying to peddle the documents.

A West German weekly magazine, Die Aktuelle, has confirmed it is considering publishing the transcripts, which supposedly contain snatches of intimate conversation betw-een the heir to the throne and his fiancee, Lady Diana Spencer.

11 die in plane crash

FREDERICK, Maryland, May 6 (AFP) -Eleven persons were killed Wednesday when a U.S. Air Force C-135 transport plane crashed on a farm near here, police said. The plane is believed to have exploded in flight before crashing on a farm near the village of Walkersville, they added.

Solidarity to own radio

WARSAW, May 6 (AP) - The independent union Solidarity has won the right to its own programs on the state television and radio and will be able to run its own radio and TV studio, the Polish news agency PAP reported Wednesday.

Access to the media was one of the concessions won by the union during widespread strikes last summer in the Gdansk shipyards and elsewhere. PAP reported that as a result of talks between the union and government, Solidarity will be allowed programs during regular broadcasting time. But the programs will be subject to censorship, the agency said.

In addition, talks produced an agreement that Solidarity could have its own radio and TV studio, PAP said. Both sides agreed that the radio and TV news will carry reports on Solidarity's resolutions and declarations which have been cleared by the Solidarity press spokesman, PAP said.

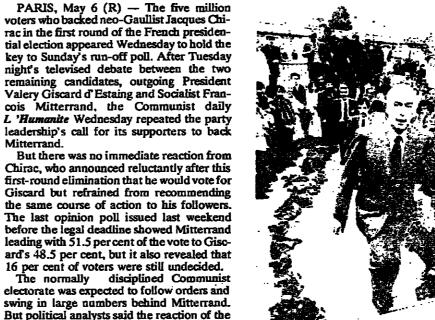

If such clearance is unobtainable or unavailable, the agency said, the radio and TV will broadcast their own reports on the situation in question stating the source of the informa-

Talks aimed at formally establishing Solidarity's access to other mass media will be held Thursday, PAP said. The decision on radio and television access come about one month after Solidarity began regular publication of its weekly newspaper Solidarity.

Meanwhile, the Polish parliament Wednesday passed a bill making it legal to register an independent union of private farmers. "The rights of agriculture must be guaranteed to avert the specter of hunger," one speaker said. "Agriculture cannot any longer be treated like a hungry cow that is there to be

The decision to create a legal basis for registering the farmers' union came during talks that ended a month-long sit-in at the United Peasants Party headquarters in Bydgoszcz in northwest Poland on April 17.

Private farmers own most of Poland's agricultural land and produce about 80 per cent of its food. The independent union - which Poland's courts had ruled could not be registered under existing law — is said to include about 800,000 of the nation's 3.5 million private farmers

Chirac voters hold key

The normally disciplined Communist electorate was expected to follow orders and swing in large numbers behind Mitterrand. But political analysts said the reaction of the neo-Gaullist voters was not so predictable particularly after the barsh words Chirac had for Giscard earlier in the campaign.

Most neo-Gaullist members of parliament, who owe their seats partly to Giscardian votes, have already announced they will support the outgoing president. This has not been the case, however, with many militants of Chirac's Rassemblement Pour la Republique (RPR) Party who retain a deep distrust of Giscard and share their leader's judgement that the results of the president's first sevenyear term were negative. The shadow of Chirac loomed large in Tuesday night's televised debate.

Giscard taunted his Socialist challenger, saying that if Mitterrand was elected and subsequently won a parliamentary majority, he could still be dependent on Communist sup-port and would therefore be obliged to appoint Communist ministers. Mitterrand reported by saying that judging by Chirac's own attitude and that of his party during the campaign, Giscard could not have a majority eit-

Gunmen escape with hostage aid

PARIS, May 6 (AFP) — Two armed men Wednesday staged a holdup at a gold dealers in central Paris, escaping with the aid of a hostage who was released shortly afterward. The gunmen stole an estimated 200,000 francs (about $50,000).

Their whole caper was filmed by a Belgian television team, who a chance happened to be at the scene of the crime on a corner street facing the Paris bourse. The holdup took place just before noon when the area was crowded with stockbrokers and financiers.

A young man with a gun and carrying a small suitcase told a woman employee: 'You look intelligent -- I have a bomb in this suitcase with a time device which will explode when I leave. Now pass me over all the cash you have." As the woman handed over bundles of 500-franc ($100) notes, three uniformed police walked in to carry out an inspection, a routine procedure since the dealers were attacked in 1974. One of the armed men took the pin out of a hand grenade and neutralized the police.

U.S. secretly sells F-5s to Mexico

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP) - The United States secretly sold Mexico 12 F-5 jet fighters late last year, U.S. military sources have said. These sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said there was no public announcement of the sale in deference to the wishes of the Mexican government.

Asked about reports of the sale, the Defense Department refused any official comment, Tuesday. According to sources, Congress was notified by President Jimmy Carter's administration Dec. 17 that it proposed selling Mexico 10 single-seater F-5E fighters and two twin-seater F-5Fs, surplus spare parts, training and support services, for $115 million.

Since Congress did not block the sale within the prescribed 30 days permitted under the law for such action, the deal went through, sources said. Mexico, now has about 70 combat planes, mostly old aircraft modified from trainers.

Before the deal for the F-5s, Mexico had bought only $21.7 million in military equipment form the United States in the previous Israel had received U.S. permission to try to sell its Klir fighter to Mexico, but the Mexicans apparently preferred the F-5, a supersonic fighter which has been sold to many countries around the world. It is much less sophisticated than other combat planes such as the F-15 — which the United States has been selling to friends and allies.
